TUESDAY AUGUST 9.

There is one thing which the administration still keeps in stock—good intentions.

One of the big redwood trees of California, furnishes 11,000 feet of lumber for Pullman car interiors.

It is said that all who had anything to do with McFarlane's escape will be indicted. Well, what will be done with Sheriff Watson?

The United labor party of New York is determined to drive the socialists out of their ranks. This movement reflects honor upon the United labor party.

News from the Sandwich Islands: There is said to be $6,700 in the Hawaiian treasury. As this will buy three gallons of rum, it may be several days before the king rests.

In two years from now it will be as difficult to find a mugwump who will openly confess that he voted for Cleveland, as it is to find a democrat who takes pride in saying that he voted for James Buchanan.

Of late years a good many classes have been formed throughout the country for strengthening the memory. Mr. Cleveland and some of his advisers should join one of the memory strengthening classes. They seem to have forgotten completely their promises made three years ago.

There was 27,844 immigrants landed at Castle Garden during the month of July. They came by seventy-three different steamers, and their total number is greater than the immigration for the month of July last year by 3,410. It is calculated at Castle Garden that the total immigration for the year will be almost 400,000. In 1881 it was 445,000; in 1882, 441,000.

A dispatch from New York says that George Drummond, otherwise Lord Drummond, who died peacefully in a New York hospital last Friday, was discovered by his family for marrying out of the social circle. Coming to America to make his home, he was able to support his wife and child until overtaken by consumption. He could have been rich and honored if he had abandoned his wife, but there was enough genuine nobility in his character not to purchase alleged nobility at such a price.

Behold how beautiful is the unity that marks the dwelling together under one political tent of the mugwumps and the democrats. The New York Evening Post, representing the mugwumps, says: "The democratic platform of Virginia is unquestionably the most degrading political deliverance of the present year." But the Atlantic Constitution, representing the democratic party, says: "The Virginia platform is to the point. Its main features will be embodied in the next national democratic platform. The Virginia platform will win. It interprets the views of the democratic party of the south."

Dr. Cogswell, of San Francisco, is building a tomb that will outlast the pyramids. He is putting into it 500 pieces of New Hampshire granite, which will be raised into a structure 70 or 80 feet high, in part consisting of an obelisk 14 feet high, a dome in imitation of the Washington capitol, and bronze work supporting a huge star of white crystal. At the corner of the obelisk will be heroic figures of Faith, Hope, Charity, and temperance. The doctor wants the monument completed before he dies. In this he is wise. He understands the fate of all monument makers, and so with his own money he is building a monument to suit himself. For an ambitious and a vain person he is elated.

The New York Independent, which supported Cleveland in 1884, and now feels ashamed of it, endorses the action of the Ohio republicans in their endorsement of John Sherman for president. In these words: "There is no man in the United States who is better qualified to fill that office than Senator Sherman. He probably knows more about the wants of the nation, at this critical time, than any other man whose name will be proposed as the presidential candidate of the party. His long training in the house of representatives and the senate, his valuable help and experience as secretary of the treasury and in giving shape to our financial interests, his practical knowledge of all parliamentary affairs, obtained while getting our vice-president—his other things, we affirm, place Senator Sherman in the front rank among the ablest men of the nation and the age."

The state board of supervision has received the reports from the various institutions under its charge regarding the number of persons in each July 31, 1887. The state hospital at Mendota has 430 inmates; the northern hospital at Oshkosh, 603; the state prison at Waupun, 430; and the industrial school for boys at Janesville, 343. The institution for the deaf at Delavan and that for the blind at Janesville are closed for the summer vacation. Contrivance J. W. Hinkley is so honestly and conscientiously pushing the work on the main building and two cottages at the deaf school at Sparta, that there is a possibility that he will have them completed before winter opens, instead of next spring, as the contract demands. The board is much pleased with Mr. Hinkley's methods and push to the matter. These three buildings he is erecting will cost about $55,000 when fully completed.

A dispatch from Washington to the Milwaukee Sentinel, announcing the death of Amos Reed, for many years a resident of this city, and at one time acting governor of Utah. Mr. Reed was born in New York in 1821, and was in his 65th year, he removed to Madison in 1850. In 1857, when James D. Doty was appointed Indian agent at Salt Lake, Reed was appointed clerk and accompanied Doty to Utah. When Doty was appointed governor of Utah in 1865, Reed was appointed secretary and continued in that office until January, 1868. Doty died in July, 1865, and succeeded by Charles Drake, but during the portion of the time was acting Indian agent. The Mountain Meadows massacre was still fresh in memory when Mr. Reed went to Utah. During his residence there an unsuccessful attempt was made by the Mormons to procure the admission of Utah into the Union, as the "State of Deseret." The failure of this attempt occasioned much trouble on the part of the Mormons and this, together with the spirit illustrated by the Mountain Meadows massacre and encouraged by their immunity from discovery and punishment for that crime, made them arrogant and vindictive, and the life of United States officials among them a burden. Mr. Reed determined to quit the Mormon territory on account of these troubles, and bought an estate in Prince George's county, Maryland, where his death took place on Sunday.

The recommendation made by a portion of the republicans were looking to the rehabilitation of the republican party in the south, is, on its face, a good one. There ought to be a stronger minority in that section than there is and a more respectable one. It would be for the interest of the people there and for the interest of the nation generally. Republicanism is by no means extinct in that section, as the large vote cast for it in most states last year witnesses. It might be effectively revived by more than one candidate if the effort was made in the right spirit.—Boston Herald.

These are some good suggestions for a democratic paper. But why doesn't the Herald tell its readers why the republican party has disappeared from the south? Why doesn't it explain, in as much as it knows all the facts, why counties which formerly had from 1,000 to 3,000 republican voters now have none? Why doesn't the Herald tell all the truth and nothing but the truth, why it is utterly impossible, with the present political methods of the democratic party in the south, to rehabilitate the republican party in the south? The time now is in the south, and the Herald knows it full well, that it is all a man's life is worth to be a prominent and active republican in many portions of the southern states. It would be better for the south in every respect that can be named, if the democratic majority in the old slave state could cut down so that republicans could have a fighting chance. Better men would thereby get in office, and the democratic party would be less reckless than it is now.

THE SAILING CANOE.

Information About Managing This Interesting Craft.

The sailing canoe is a development of comparatively recent date, but it has advanced wonderfully in favor with men of aquatic tastes. Some canoes are built to be used under sail or with paddle, some are used as light as a feather with a single oar, and some are built to be used with a single oar and a center-board and is not too heavy to be paddled with ease, is the best. For racing and deep water cruising, the heavier and larger boats are used, and they will live in any sea and all-weather canoe, one that has a keel and center-board and is not too heavy to be paddled with ease, is the best. For racing and deep water cruising, the heavier and larger boats are used, and they will live in any sea and all-weather canoe, one that has a keel and center-board and is not too heavy to be paddled with ease, is the best.

But, but, but the very thing that a canoeist must cultivate. The crew of an American sailing canoe generally divide out to windward and the weather canoe keeps the weight on the weather canoe. It is a good scheme, however, for Captain Cook and all hands to split themselves occasionally for practice. In the canoe regatta races are included, and some skippers are so expert that they can capsize, right their boats and get inside and out under way again in twenty seconds. This kind of practice touches a canoeist to keep everything on board lashed to its place. If he depends upon the paddle he must look out for his canoe as well as his own skin. It can't be made to go. The paddle should be tied with a long line to some part of the canoe so that it may be dropped overboard without danger of being lost.

James Wore Not His Part.

How old do you like your pastor? "First-rate," he replied, "except in one thing." "What's that?" "It is this," continued the deacon. "The Lord never made him to tell jokes, and yet he insists on telling them. I never like to laugh when I don't want to laugh, and yet I have to do it constantly, just to save the pastor's feelings."

TERRIBLE SUFFERINGS.

An Awful Tale of Shipwreck on the Gulf of California.

THE SLOOP SARGOES DOWN IN A SQUALL.

A Number of Lives Lost—Sailors, Crewed by Their Sufferings, Jump Overboard and Are Devoured by Sharks.

PORT OF THE SARGO.

NOGALIA, T. A. Aug. 9.—The sloop Sargo, eighteen tons register, owned and commanded by Abraham Bakaran, left Malaga on the morning of July 25 loaded with tan bark, and having on board the captain, his wife, her children and niece, Mrs. Halls, superintendent of the Bakaran paper mill at Santa Rosalia, and a crew of five men. Between San Pedro and Mazatlan, in the Gulf of California, the vessel was struck by a heavy surf and capsized. All on board perished excepting the captain and four sailors, who saved themselves by climbing on the bottom of the capsized vessel. On the second day after the accident, the bodies of the captain's wife and children rose to the surface and were eaten by sharks while the husband and father looked on the awful sight in horror. On July 30 two of the sailors, one crazy and said they were going ashore, and immediately plunged overboard. They no sooner struck water than the sharks devoured them. The captain, an sailor and a small boy remained on the bottom of the vessel, for eight days, sustaining life by catching turtles that would come near them and sucking their blood. They were rescued in a most pitiful condition by the fishing sloop Hefugio, and afterward transferred to the company's steamer Koriga which was sent in search of the Sargo and arrived at Nogalia Sunday night. The captain of the Sargo is mentally and physically a wreck. Captain Bakaran says there was another small sloop near his vessel in the same gale. It is supposed that she went down with all on board.

TO THE WATER'S EDGE.

Burning of the Steamer Ashland on Lake Superior—One Life Lost.

ASHLAND, Wis., Aug. 9.—The side-wheel steamer City of Ashland took on board a cargo of lumber yesterday morning about six miles from here. She was on her way from Bad River with a raft of logs for the Superior Lumber Company. A crew of six men were on board, five of whom were rescued by a tug from here and Washburn. The other is supposed to have drowned. The City of Ashland was built here by Captain R. Doherty, of this city, who was sailing her. She was bought from Captain Doherty by the Ashland Lumber Company this spring, and was valued at about $8,000. Those on board say the fire broke out near the bow, and the boat was a mass of flames in an instant. A life-boat was on the deck of the steamer, but it was impossible to lower it to the water or account of the flames, so all on board were obliged to jump overboard.

BOND PURCHASES.

Why the National Treasury Proposes to Buy All That Are Offered.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—It is not expected at the Treasury Department that the recent circulation of the Secretary relating to the purchase of 4½ per cent bonds will bring many offers from bondholders, and that such as may be offered will be at prices that can be accepted. The offer to purchase appears to have been made more for the purpose of preventing an artificial stringency in the money market than in the expectation of obtaining bonds. With money flowing into the treasury at the rate of $1,000,000 a day, and with no means of getting it out, it would be difficult for bond men to form a pool to lock up money so that sufficient could not be raised except at ruinous rates of interest to carry on the legitimate business of the country. In such an emergency advance would even be refused on Government bonds, because money would command a large rate on call. With the offer of the Treasury to buy all bonds that are offered, and the banks and individuals holders of bonds will be able to supply their needs with currency without being subjected to usury. Of the $200,000,000 of 4½ per cent bonds the United States Treasury holds to secure National bank notes and Government deposits nearly $30,000,000—about one-third of the amount outstanding. While the Government does not expect to obtain many bonds, it is expected that holders generally will accept the payment of advance interest with two per cent rebate. Bankers and banking institutions are expected to avail themselves of this offer, because the money thus obtained can be loaned at rates that will insure a fair margin of profit.

An Aged Woman of Considerable Means Murdered for Money by Her Married Daughter.

Monday morning the two women had a disagreeable quarrel, in which Mrs. Willis grabbed her mother by the hair, threw her violently to the floor, and beat and kicked her until she became unconscious. In a few hours the injured woman died from the effects of her injuries. She died while dictating a will to exclude her natural daughter from receiving a cent of her property. Mrs. Willis has been arrested.
